Introduction

This Instruction Guide provides general information on making an application to be an RSE licensee under the SIS Act using the approved Application Form – RSE Licence. It does not constitute legal advice.

For further information, visit APRA's website at www.apra.gov.au or contact 1300 55 88 49 or by email at info@apra.gov.au.

Who needs to hold an RSE licence?

An applicant seeking to operate an APRA-regulated superannuation entity must hold an RSE licence as required under the SIS Act.

A trustee of self-managed superannuation funds regulated by Australian Taxation Office and public sector superannuation schemes are not required to hold an RSE licence.

What type of entity can apply for an RSE licence?

A constitutional corporation, a body corporate that is not constitutional corporations and a group of individual trustees may apply for a licence. A group of individual trustees is licensed as a group. That is, each individual trustee is not required to have a licence, but the licence will be issued to the group of trustees.

Is there a prescribed fee?

An applicant seeking an RSE licence is required to pay the appropriate fee. The schedule of fees as stipulated in r. 3A.06 of the Regulations are dependent on the class of RSE licence the applicant is seeking.

An application is not considered until the prescribed fee has been received by APRA.

The schedule of fees is available on APRA's website.

What happens after receiving an RSE licence?

Once an RSE licence is granted, APRA will issue the RSE licensee with a unique RSE licence number.

The RSE licensee must include its ABN on any documents which identify it as a holder of an RSE licence, as required by s. 29DC of the SIS Act.

Following receipt of the licence, an RSE licensee must meet a number of ongoing requirements including, but not limited to:

- compliance with the RSE licensee law as defined in s. 10 of the SIS Act;
- notifying APRA of any significant breaches (or likely significant breaches) of a prudential requirement within 10 days after the RSE licensee becomes aware a breach has occurred;
- proper and prudent performance as a RSE licensee;
- registration of each superannuation entity for which it intends to be RSE licensee;
- notifying APRA of any changes in the composition of the RSE licensee or responsible persons within 14 days of that change;
- compliance with conditions of the specific RSE licence issued; and
- providing reporting information under the FSCOD Act.

What is the application process?

The approved form, Application Form – RSE licence, is available on the APRA website. An Applicant will be able to submit drafts of its application by providing either hard copies or electronic versions to enable consultation with APRA prior to final submission. The Applicant will have the ability to amend its application at any time up until it lodges the forms in their final version.

While there is no legal obligation for APRA to comment on draft applications, APRA will endeavour to provide comments on draft applications as practicable.

An applicant is strongly encouraged to consult with APRA before lodging a final application for an RSE licence.

APRA expects an Applicant would include a covering letter with their application. The covering letter would outline the Applicant's business case for applying for an RSE licence and indicate how the documents attached with the application demonstrate the Applicant's likely compliance with the legislative and prudential standard requirements.

RSE registration and MySuper authorisation

An applicant is encouraged to submit draft RSE registration and MySuper authorisation (if applicable) application forms with their RSE licence application.

Approved RSE registration and MySuper authorisation forms and instruction guides are available on the APRA website.

An applicant is strongly encouraged to consult with APRA before lodging a final application for an RSE registration and/or MySuper authorisation.

Penalties for false information

An applicant should note that giving false or misleading information is a serious offence (see s. 136.1, s. 137.1 and s. 137.2 of the Criminal Code Act 1995). Where information is disclosed to APRA as part of this application, APRA may in turn disclose that information in any of the circumstances permitted by s. 56 of the Australian Prudential Regulation Authority Act 1998.

SPS 530 requires that for each role related to an investment activity, the role statements include details of each role's responsibilities and reporting structures. Attach relevant role statement documents and any other documentation that demonstrates compliance with the requirements of SPS 530.

Investment selection process

SPS 530 requires an RSE licensee to have processes and criteria for selecting each investment to give effect to the investment strategy (investment selection process) to ensure effective due diligence. SPS 530 outlines a number of matters that an RSE licensee's investment selection process must satisfy.

Attach relevant documentation that outlines the Applicant's investment selection process including the criteria for selecting investments and the due diligence process undertaken.

Stress testing program

SPS 530 requires an RSE licensee to have a comprehensive stress testing program that includes, at a minimum, the performance of each investment option against the stress scenarios required in the standard.

Attach relevant documentation which details the Applicant's stress testing program and demonstrates compliance with the requirements in SPS 530.

B11 – Prudential Standards – additional matters

Additional matters demonstrating likely compliance with prudential standards

This item is optional.

If the Applicant considers that there are matters, not otherwise sought in the approved application form, and that it wishes APRA to take into account, it should attach documents addressing those matters. This item in the application is intended to give the Applicant the opportunity to address any other areas it believes may be relevant to its application.

In addition to matters directly included in the application form, APRA's supervisory view of the Applicant and its directors may be relevant to its consideration of the likely compliance with the Prudential Standards. The weight to be given to this factor in assessing the likelihood of future compliance will depend on a number of matters, including the circumstances surrounding any issues of concern.

Before APRA makes a final decision to decline an application for an RSE licence, it will advise the Applicant of its preliminary view and the reasons for it. The Applicant will have the opportunity to show cause why the proposed decision should not be made, and its submission will be taken into account in APRA's final decision.

Part C - Attestations

An Applicant is not required to sign Part C if the Applicant has indicated in Part A that the application form is a draft.

Where the application is final, Part C contains attestations that must be completed by at least two directors where an Applicant is a body corporate (Attestation A), or by each trustee where the Applicant is a group of individual trustees (Attestation B). For Attestation B, provide an additional attestation if further space is required to accommodate all trustee signatures.
