A person who keeps an animal must provide a proper enclosure for the animal. A proper enclosure is an area of the allotment on which the animal is kept which includes but is not limited to:

- (a) appropriately sized as to be capable of effectively and comfortably housing the animal; and
- (b) suitably fenced, appropriate to the species and breed of the animal to be enclosed.

* The Department of Primary Industries (DPI) requires notification of all livestock on a property. A copy of the DPI approval must be attached to this application.

^ Only one rooster is permitted per property.
